Fresh Film Festival launches 'Big City Portrait'

In conjunction with Limerick City of Culture we are delighted to announce Fresh Film Festival's 'Big City Portrait'. This project will facilitate the production of a collection of micro-documentaries, made by groups of young people in Limerick. The documentaries will focus on aspects of the filmmakers' lives: an activity, a place, an object, or whatever inspires the creation of a film. Talpini Media will work with schools, clubs and youth groups, across the Limerick to identify young people to create a collection of films to tell the stories of Limerick's young people. The films will be screened in innovative ways across the city and will be collected to create an interactive online web documentary.

On Saturday 5th of April we will launch the project with a workshop consisting of a practical introduction to documentary filmmaking and will explore the opportunities for innovative filmmaking in the digital world.

Location: The Captains Room at the Hunt Museum 11.00-13.00
